Not nearly as many guest artists showed up for this issue as I'd hoped. That's why it's only regular size, even tho' I'd said "more pages" in last issue's blurb. Sorry 'bout that. Nevertheless, unauthorized reproduction of this book is strictly forbidden. If you violate our copyright, I will tie you up, stick you in a closet, and then play the same Henny Youngman record for you, again and again and again and again for weeks on end. If you can survive this ordeal with your sense of humour intact, you have my respect. But I'd rather that you play straight and....

VIOLENCE SECTION:

GUN control in America is a farce built upon an illusion. Many well-meaning "liberal" people seem to believe that passing strict laws, making it difficult for law-abiding people to get guns, will end shooting deaths. The key word is "law abiding". Do you really believe that a man who's going to use a gun for a crime like murder or robbery is going to care at all about some government gun regulations? Think about it for a second! He'll get his gun any way he can! Tough laws will only keep guns out of the hands of honest citizens who legitimately need guns to defend themselves against armed robbers and murderers. There's a lot of truth in the slogan: "If guns are outlawed only outlaws will have guns". It does the sheep little good to pass resolutions in favor of vegetarianism, as long as the wolves are of a different opinion.

Half-hearted "gun control" is worse than none. If everyone has a gun, then at least the crooks and citizens are even. If nobody has a gun (like in Iceland) then, again, we're on even footing. But uneven gun control legislation threatens to create an armed criminal class versus an unarmed citizenry. They'd run amuck. The gun control laws that liberals yearn for would quite likely create more killings and terror in the streets - the complete opposite of what they intend. That's why I'm against gun control. It would be best if nobody had a gun, but since that's impossible here, I at least want to be able to shoot back.

I realize that this is pretty serious for a "funny" issue - but getting shot at is just not funny....
